Labyrinth Spider Web

A Funnel-web spider?

Happily, funnel webs around here are the work of Labyrinth spiders which are totally harmless and a nondescript dull grey-brown in colour. Their amazing webs are designed to protect their eggs.

Not to frighten anyone but it does look similar to the web of the deadly funnel-web spider but that's found only in Australia.

And fungi

Picture taken not in our park but in the CS Lewis Reserve.

They look like Wolf's milk slime balls

Anyone seen them in the park?

On the other hand these were snapped by the bin near the park gate.

They look familiar – but?

Someone must know what they are.
